THE BEACON

June, 1941

PUBLISHED BY

June Graduating Class of Newport News High School

Newport News, Virginia

Foreword

To the south of us lies a continent that is known all over the world for its beauty, its gay songs, and the happy, carefree people that live there. This neighbor, South America, has been chosen as the theme for the June 1941 annual.

Since the days when the Spanish first landed on its shores, this land has grown to be one of the most important and prosperous in the world. It is well-known for its great rubber and coffee plantations and its famous sheep raising. Little towns have sprung into great cities such as Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

In such times as the world is now going through it is a fine thing that two continents are such good neighbors as North and South America. Good Neighbor . . . we salute you!

Dedication

Because of her enduring patience and ability to understand the pupils of this senior class, the annual staff of June 1941 dedicates this book to Miss Dorothy M. Crane, head of the drama department and director of activities in Newport News High School.

We value especially her willingness to assume responsibility. Not only the Thespians and drama department, but also the whole high school fully appreciates her outstanding qualities. We of the senior class can think of no finer way of expressing our love and appreciation than by dedicating this annual to her.

An Open Letter

To the Graduates of the Class of June 1941:

My dear Pupils:

It is with sadness I address you as "my pupils" for the last time today. Sadness, however, is considerably mixed with pride, and I feel honored at having been chosen your sponsor and especially so, as in my opinion, your class is one of the best our High School has graduated. Each day we have labored together will ever remain with me as a very happy memory.

Your motto pleased me more than I can say, for it represents the sentiment and ideals of a representative body of young men and young women—"To strive, to seek, to find and not to yield."

I can wish you no better thing than that you carry this through life—make it like the red strand that runs through all British naval rope, the center and the source of strength. When the clinging seaweed and dirty tar are cleared, the little parasites that have bored into the outer covering are found never have affected that red thread of safety.

Life will bring its burdens, its disappointments, its hurts as well as its joys, but may the red line of your motto "To strive, to seek, to find and not to yield" hold fast, knowing neither compromise with right nor weakening of purpose; so that when you reach the end of your pathway, whether it be long or short, you shall have taken its chiseling and blows as the diamond, not breaking under them, as common glass. Then, may you look back with pleasure on service to others, on friendships rather than on an accumulation of material things and truly say, "I bear no man a grudge; I have carried my ideals on high; I have kept the faith with myself."

Graduates of the Class of June '41 I give you the guerdon bearing your motto; carry it high, above the blinding dust of earth.

Again, expressing my appreciation of the honor done me in choosing me as your sponsor—I shall remain,

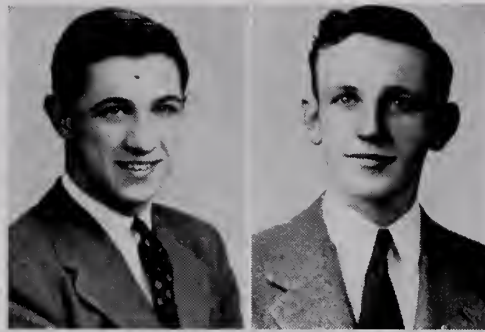

Ever affectionately yours,

Cornelia W. Segar

Class Song

*With the lessons you have taught us,
To seek and not to yield,
With the happiness you have brought us,
Honor shall we wield.
Few may know much fame or pleasure,
But one common gift we have:
Democracy, Man's greatest treasure,
Class brothers all may share.*

Music by HARVEY SPIGEL

Cafe La Conga

IF YOU ask me, I'd say he's gone strictly South American. Who? "Fatstuff" Aaron—huddled by the door of the "Conga" Cafe. When I saw him, he (clad in a grass skirt) was passing around his sombrero to patrons of the cafe who were within stretching distance.

Undaunted by this mass of flesh, I proceeded into the cafe where I was greeted affectionately by the head-waiter, Malvern Jester. After guiding me to a table, he returned to his post opposite the blonde hat-check girl, Senorita Anne Williamson, who was watching Ernestine Moskowitz wander aimlessly among the tables looking for menus to translate. The staff of waitresses, Mattie Sifford, "Tibby" Gray, Anne Wenzel, and Elsie Phillips, was receiving its orders from Jester when a great drum roll caught my attention. Turning, I recognized the drummers to be Jack Brooks and Edwin Buckingham. Boozie Carleton, as band leader, gave the down beat to his orchestra, the "Cuca Rochas."

Jean Sloan was sawing away at the first fiddle (no one was playing second fiddle); Beryl Oser doubled on the clarinet and sax; Hefty Hayman slapped the dog-house; and Spike Spigel stroked the ivories. When this motley crew swung into the "Java Jive", the Five O'Clock Shadows—Tommy Townsend, George Oden, George Gray, Max Garrett, and Gus Morris—gathered around the femme vocalist, Jeanne Spencer, to render their own arrangement of the song.

Meanwhile, celebrities were beginning to arrive. Happy Howard, the All-American Sweetheart (who, I might add, is the honorary sweetheart of nine different college fraternities), entered with her escort, Bones Carpenter, the All-American Pal. Their party included Dorothy Walker, a dazzling clothes designer, escorted by Colonel Cole, celebrated male clothes horse. Tagging behind were Bill Bembow, a melancholy poet; Steve Sokol, New York financier; and finally Charles Junior Donegan who looked longingly at the blonde hat-check girl and enviously at the head-waiter. Helen Weeks, the Greatest Soprano of All Time, fresh from the winter season at the Met, swished in slowly for a grand entrance but soon was lost in obscurity.

Strains of "Ay, Yi, Yi, Yi" reached my ears and I saw that Brazilian bombshell, Carmen "Shake the Shoulders" Munnikhuysen, on the stage. Her conga was explosive and dynamic, believe me. A lively good neighbor, yes? To top this off, a long line of chorus girls entered. The most outstanding of these were Annette Rawles, Cecelia Perzekow, Mary Shockley, Bettys Lankes-Doggett, Peggy Gray, and Josephine Shaffner. Following this number was a sensational act put on by Senor Eugene Levin, "The Dance of the Sultan." Anyway, it was creative.

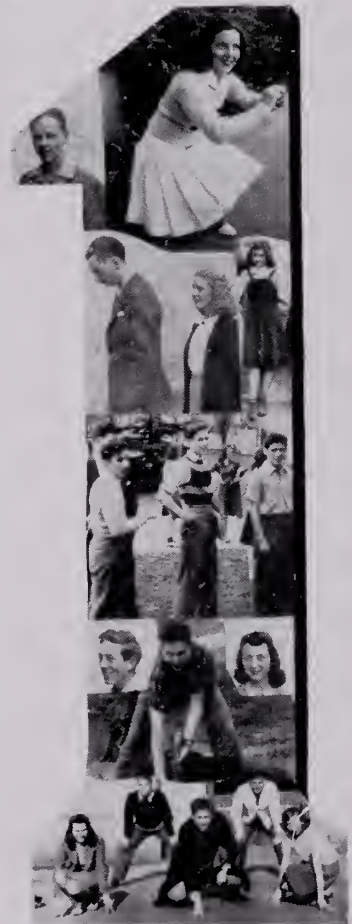

At the doors was a congestion which diners were viewing with interest. A crowd had gathered, but one voice was distinguished as belonging to Mac Bridgers, well-known orator and lobbyist. The manager, Billy Kanelos, babbling in Spanish, apparently did not appreciate Bridgers' habit of delivering spontaneous speeches in public. Finally the two were calmed and business picked up. People cheered the sensational star of stage and screen, Dorothy Glesenkamp, who has just completed her motion picture, "The (South) American Way", which was produced by MGM. (I might state that this firm is now operated by McGann, Gray, Murden). Following her, Allen Tennis marched in, and I do mean "marched." Two years ago he was on the verge of matrimony, but just as wedding bells were about to ring, the draft got him.

Among the couples on the dance floor watching Cecil Woolard and Ann Millner rhumba were Jean Williams, Bob Dozier, Novella Stubblefield, and Mortie Goldmeier. This soon broke up when Jean Beck and Margaret Huske came on the dance floor. They got rushed, and how!

The floor show continued, and, at last, when the band began to pack up, the cafe was vacated. That is, it seemed empty except for one lone person left cleaning the floor. I was about to leave, but this janitor struck a familiar note. I could distinguish the gait anywhere. Sure enough, he was "all fake, no shoot, Cutler". With a broad grin on his face, he guided his broom across the floor; that was no fake, believe me!

Seriously, we're only kidding, but any resemblance between these characters and persons living and going to high school is purely on purpose.

Last Will and Testament

We, the class of June 1941, realizing that we must give up all 8:30 secret rendezvous in the auditorium, hasty meetings between classes, beloved 8:20's, and all things dear to our hearts in "ole Newport", do hereby publish this, our last will and testament.

We, insisting that we are of sound mind and body, do solemnly swear that the following is our 100th and final will and testament:

1. To Mr. Louis, we leave Mr. Kirk's draftee number. He must be deeply crushed at having been overlooked so long by Uncle Sam.
2. To any future shipyard laborers, we give the rip in Selwyn Garner's new pants.
3. To some aspiring Don Juan, Colonel Cole mournfully leaves his priceless date book.
4. To the president-elect, Charlie Sokol, we leave Tom Cutler's password, "Side Section."
5. To any future Jack Benny, we bestow quite willingly "Spike's" 1921 Joke Book.
6. To Miss Burbank, we extend our sincerest thanks for helping us pass safely through our flighty period of adolescence.
7. To one of our husky brothers, we leave Bones Carpenter's ideas on the "Advantages of Ry-Krisp."
8. To anyone susceptible to ever-faithful spring fever, we give Billy Jacob's perpetual motion.
9. To any young aspirant contemplating entering the profession of coming in third in chemistry contests, we bestow William Murden's "technical" brain.

10. To everyone, we leave Miss Gambill's contagious laugh and good humor.
11. To Mac Bridgers, and all other disillusioned young swains, we lovingly extend Malvern Jester's ideas on women.
12. Dorothy Walker wishes to contribute her vast collection of costume jewelry to all the unadorned.
13. To any hopeful young damsel, we leave Jean Robin's book "How to Win Husbands and Influence Them."
14. To Miss Crane, or any other appreciative recipient, Mattie J. Sifford leaves her chewing gum under the table in English class.
15. To all Navy juniors, Margaret Huske leaves her emphatic opinions on "The Advantages of Being an Army Brat."
16. To Mr. Stanley, we leave our heartiest appreciations for his various and sundry "little stories", and our thanks for his always remaining "one of the boys."

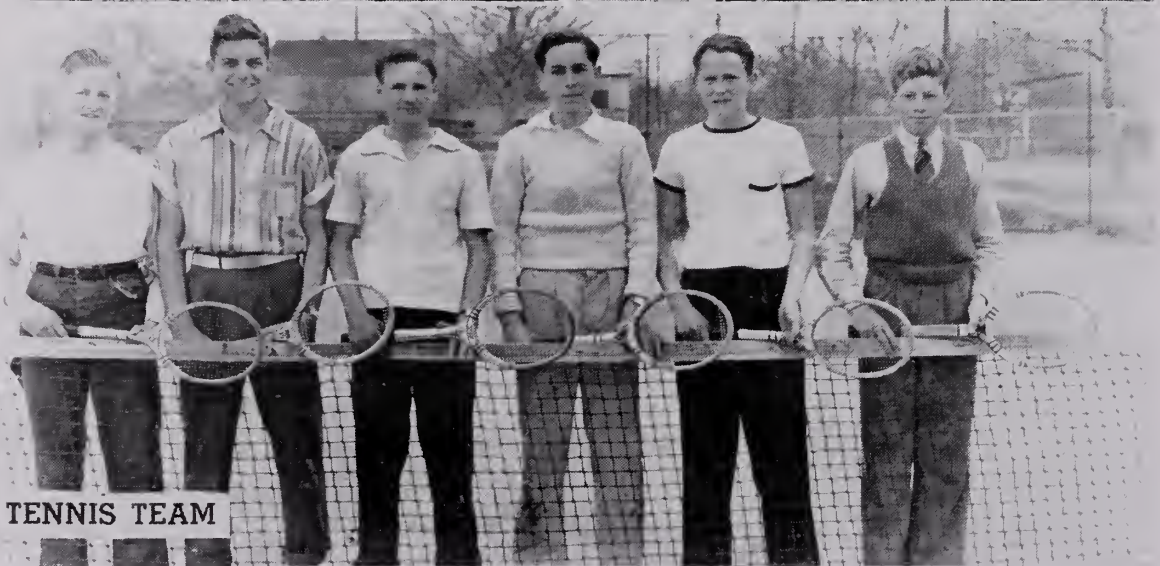

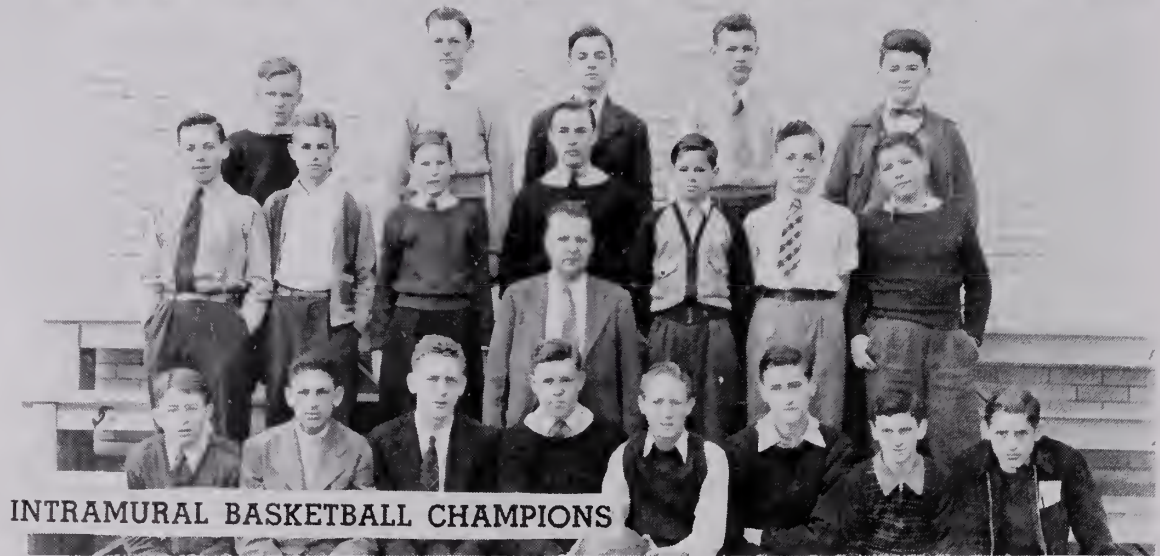

After completing our four years with customary senior dignity and conceit, we do hereby affix our signatures as a seal to this document.

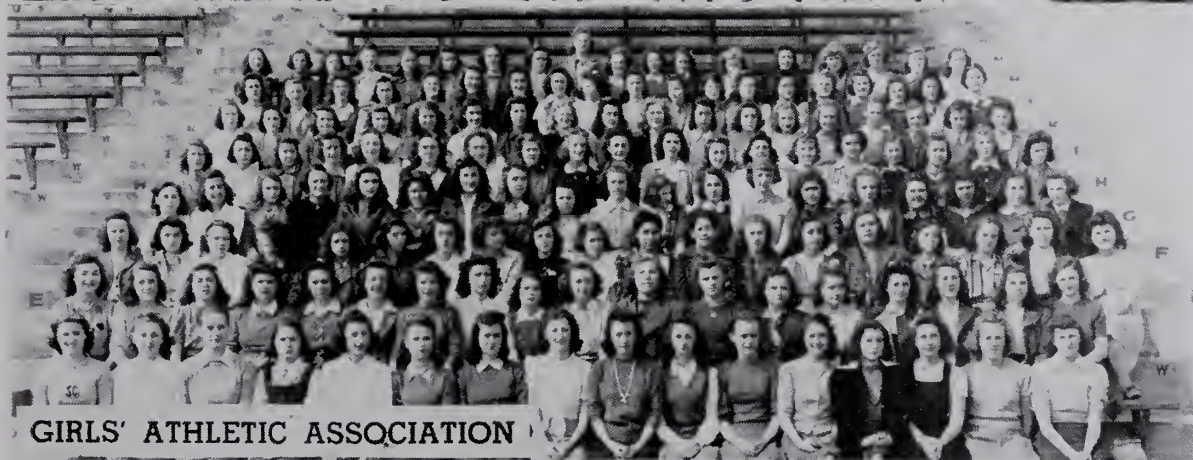

Testator, The Seniors.
